

ACI Report 222.2 raised a concern over the use of water-soluble oil related to bond for corrosion protection of strand. What is the most common application of temporary corrosion protection of strand currently used?

Vapor Phase Corrosion Inhibitor powders are the most commonly used corrosion protection measure for strands that won't be grouted for some time after installation. Ideally, strands are grouted immediately or within a few days of installation and tensioning.