

When running bleed test during production, what is the point if the results are not available until multiple tendons have been grouted?

It makes sure you can correct the batch going forward plus allows documentation of tendons that may need to be further inspected after grouting.